

Cog Sci Concentration Application Questions

- Give a brief title of your theme, and describe the cognitive science theme that your proposed concentration is designed to cover. The theme must be connected with cognitive science, i.e., the relevance to and implications for cognition must be clearly stated.

Course #1 of your proposed concentration:

- Give the course number, course name, and the Claremont College that teaches it. Also indicate if you have or have not taken the course.
- Provide a detailed rationale for how this course is relevant to your theme.
- List any required prerequisite courses needed to take this course (course name and number) and whether you have taken them.
- Attach a course syllabus if this course is not currently approved to count toward the major.

Course #2 of your proposed concentration:

- Give the course number, course name, and the Claremont College that teaches it. Also indicate if you have or have not taken the course.
- Provide a detailed rationale for how this course is relevant to your theme.
- List any required prerequisite courses needed to take this course (course name and number) and whether you have taken them.
- Attach a course syllabus if this course is not currently approved to count toward the major.

Course #3 of your proposed concentration:

- Give the course number, course name, and the Claremont College that teaches it. Also indicate if you have or have not taken the course.
- Provide a detailed rationale for how this course is relevant to your theme.
- List any required prerequisite courses needed to take this course (course name and number) and whether you have taken them.
- Attach a course syllabus if this course is not currently approved to count toward the major.

If one of the three proposed courses described above isn't offered for some reason, propose a "backup" course that could be used to fulfill the third course requirement for your concentration.

- Give the course number, course name, and the Claremont College that teaches it. Also indicate if you have or have not taken the course.
- Provide a detailed rationale for how this course is relevant to your theme.
- List any required prerequisite courses needed to take this course (course name and number) and whether you have taken them.
- Attach a course syllabus if this course is not currently approved to count toward the major.
